SUMMARY.

According to the New York "Sun," Germany has been conciliatory at the Algeiras Conference when she found that United Europe was against her.

Owing to Italy's attitude at the Algeiras Conference, the German Government is treating her with coldness.

Gherarkis, who murdered M. Delandrie, the Premier of Greece some months ago, has been sentenced to death.

The censor in St. Petersburg has endorsed the publication of a pamphlet inciting people to murder Jews. The pamphlet accuses Count Witte of a Jewish conspiracy.

The Union of Russian People, the author of the pamphlet, is a "patriotic" and "anti-revolutionary" organization.

Mr. Father Gapon has been arrested at St. Petersburg. He is accused of making a speech in favour of the Government.

Sir Edward Grey declares that it would be premature to lay the New Hebrides Convention on the table of the House of Commons at present.

The House of Commons has appointed a select committee to inquire into the matter.

Princess Ena has had settled on her by the Spanish Parliament £17,500 as dowry. The event of widowhood her allowance will be £5,000.

M. Sarrien has succeeded in forming a new Ministry in France.

The fire in the mine at Courrières, France, and operations are suspended.

The British Government has relaxed the administration of the Alien Immigration Act, principally in favour of immigrants from the United States.

In the House of Commons, Sir J. Wilson moved a resolution pledging the Government to support a tariff of £100,000.

Mr. Balfour declared the Government was attacking the Opposition, whereas it was the Opposition's duty to attack the Government.

Opposition's duty to attack the Government. The resolution, he said, would preclude the Government widening the basis of taxation and to supply means for education and to support members.

An appeal by the leader of the Opposition to the Prime Minister to resign was ignored.

The motion for adjournment was negatived by 200 votes, and Mr. Balfour, a Labour member, thereupon moved an amendment demanding many social reforms.

The Railway Administration Commission took further evidence from Mr. Oliver yesterday, principally in explanation of disputes previously referred to the Commission.

Mr. Carruthers returned to Lismore from Byron Bay, and addressed a crowded meeting in the Federal Hall last night.

He said he would not propose to construct the Mullumbidgee-Queensland boundary line until the line from Maitland to Grafton was completed.

Sixty-seven cases of typhoid are reported from Coblar. The local health authorities have wired to Sydney for additional supplies.

The pictures and drawings of Mr. Barry at auction yesterday, realised about £400.

The fire at the Proprietary mine, Broken Hill, has developed serious proportions. Both the mine and the mill are now closed.

The Presbytery of Sydney last night accepted the demission of the Rev. J. Auld, M.A., minister of the Ashfield (Liverpool-road) church.

The new redistribution of seats in the House of Representatives has been completed according to Judge Murray's scheme.

Important changes from the scheme submitted last year.

The supposed insane sailor on the ship London Hill has been taken to two lunatic asylums.

Particulars of the Willis extradition appeal have been given in the columns of this paper.

His counsel quoted Mr. Wade's statement during the course of the evidence in the Legislative Council that there was no case against Willis.

Counsel also stated that Mr. Justice Owen had given Willis permission to leave the country.

Finally it was alleged that Mr. Justice Owen had reported to the Government that there were no grounds to interfere with Willis.

The Chief Justice of Natal said the facts did not raise a strong or probable presumption that Willis committed the offence charged against him.

The point, however, upon which the appeal was based, was that the magistrate who granted the extradition order did not have the necessary jurisdiction.

The strike of stone-workers at Messrs. Freeman and Walker for 20 days has been ended.

A conference between the employers and representatives of the stone-workers has been held, and the matter will be referred to the Arbitration Court.

The fire continues in portions of Queensland and are rendering the situation serious.

At Blackall the Royal Hotel and the Queensland National Bank were inundated, and the town of Blackall is nearly surrounded by water.

At Dudley (Vic.) two men found a nugget of gold weighing 330s just a short distance from the surface of the ground.

A Government sale of confiscated liquor yesterday champagne was sold at much below the ruling price for colonial a/c.

The contest for Queensland seat in the Legislative Assembly will probably be between Mr. Henry (Liberal and Reform) and Mr. Hungerford (Labour).

THE BULGA SCRUB.

WINGHAM.

The wide belt of country most conveniently accessible from this pretty little town possesses a fascination that grows stronger and stronger the more it is penetrated and its comparatively unknown depths are delved into. The man travelling such country for observation and inquiry into its potentialities runs a big risk of becoming a confirmed armchairist and the very fact that he is not always living in total or partial isolation has the effect not of weakening but of strengthening his optimism. It is impossible to comprehend why such territory has so long lain the philosophical resolve that it cannot long be as it is. So much for the abstract—though it really is not abstract. Now we drop into a glance into country with the offensively prosaic name of Dingo Creek.

BULGA TABLE TOP.

It was my good fortune to meet Mr. George S. Hill, the owner of Bungay station, near Wingham, and co-owner, with his brother, of Yarras station, on the Hastings, to which reference has already been made. He was here on a ride across the Bulga range over to and past the Hastings, and he stopped at the opportunity to ride with him as far as the Bulga table-top, where the lovely Elisabethurst burial to 600 feet high, where they crash madly into the pool in the dizzy depths below, and scatter their spray in an ecstasy of blinding sleet high and wide, setting a near prospect of milky, white, through whose semi-transparency the eye searches out the green trees topping a glorious gorge running in wedge shape for miles. It is the wild-st, the most weird and frightful sea, the non of the descriptive writer do not know, but it is large, and there is not a shadow of doubt that with the railway it would do much more for the State than it is doing.

BACON AND MILK.

A little further on we strike the delta formed by the confluence of the Dingo and the Little Dingo, a broad sweep of rich agricultural country that is studded with malice and crookedness. The soil is in the best condition two crooks settlement is thick, but there, as in so many other places, the back country has in the past been scooped at. It is Government land, and the crookedness of the arrangement will amount to this: There is the land, discover it for yourselves; the price all round is the same; take it or leave it. Of course best, and left the other, or at any rate that which has been the process in the main. These who did venture forth back played a losing game. They were not well adapted to primitive life. Of course they were soon stranded, and many of them came on the verge of ruin in bad seasons. But, "Dairy, dairy" was the cry, and the people were made like the blessed word "Mesopotamia." Dairy they did with right good will, and to-day they are an affluent community. They sent their reams to the Middle West, and they sent their milk to the touching auxiliaries. When they grew large they bred pigs; with the decline of their maize farms, their styes ran empty, and a big factory near Wingham closed up. The district has been afraid to go in for pigs re-awakening, and to the manufacturers, who are at all times ready to open the doors of the bacon factory, in making arrangements to reopen it. Farmers have been invited to state what support they will give it, and as the trustees have already raised £100,000, the bacon factory will boom if it has a good manager. Farmers cannot go to the factory and say, "I will give you £100,000," John Harnett, of the Hastings, who says, "Pig-farming without a dairy is a very different thing to pig-farming with it." The country round will grow corn, fruit, and vegetables, and plenty of maize for home use, and with such accessories pig-farming will readily run the profits of the farm up. The question of a manager is one of the first to be decided. The factory found when it secured Mr.

DEVELOPMENT UNDER DAIRYING.

The success of the farmers since dairying obtained a firm hold has naturally had the effect of popularising the district, and all along the line, past the Adairsville station, there are evidences of the expansion of farming. There are farms to-day on land which three years ago was thick forest, as to which there was but little probability of its ever becoming some day, but it would never be any good for anything else. There is a tract of country called Marlee, consisting of rich ridge land, which has been fastened by the first settlement on it dates back to 45 years ago, but until within the past year after year, but the backs were a wanted waste. Now settlement is growing apace, and the farmers are hurrying the timber and the brush off the hillsides. The long-suppressed now hastens forward, and milking cattle, with loaded udders, revel in enjoyment. Up over the tops of high ridges the green grass grows thick and green, and shows through rung country to tell how settlement is creeping up even there. There is no doubt about these hunting people, and their dogs, who are the best of the hunting to the farming. They are pushful. The Bopin Creek presents a stretch of flat banks, where maize is growing admirably, and the country is noted. It is an auxiliary of the dairy farm.

ROUGH PIONEERING.

This is the entrance to the Bulga country.

The visitor was the settler's son-in-law, where Jimmie was the settler's son. The latter was seen fleeing back from the Hastings after having been shot. The stealing of that food led to his capture nearby. There is little or no evidence to believe that the "war" was a real one, though it is. Bulga is a generic term for high country, being an aboriginal name for mountain. But this Bulga range stands out from the rest of the "war" range. Manning and the Hastings, its peak is 2300ft high, and for years no practicable crossing could be found. The rise is very rapid, the valley very low, and the "war" range, as the convict named Jacky Davis escaped, and fled to this range. There he fell in with some blacks who proved friendly, and for years he was able to keep himself hidden. The efforts of officials had long tried, unsuccessfully, to

Mr. Jacky Davis, he wanted a pardon, and the man offered him a passage. The man knew every inch of the country for miles round. The bargain was effected, and the freeman piloted the way over the only spur that ran from the coast country to the sea. The spur was thereupon called Jacky Davis' Bulge, and the range has ever since been officially designated as the range of Jacky Davis. A good bargain when Jacky Davis was pardoned, for that spur is to-day the sole crossing for an awful stock route, truly it is a main part of it, but it is a very bad saddle where two horsemen cannot ride side by side on the level, and the sides drop so precipitously that a driver has to be constantly looking down. Ascending the steepest parts, the horseman must zigzag, for the hillside is just a degree or two removed from the per-

THE SEARCH.

Up this spur we went, and around us were rich gullies of heavy, and tops of dense forest, till at last, after passing through a fringe of brush and forest interwoven—precisely like the entrance to the Comboyne—we came upon the Bullock.

The Lands Department will "discover" it one of these days; perhaps it is fortunate they did not find it earlier, or it might have been squandered at £100,000 by some one family. Of course the department knows it exists; they have made a £6 acre recreation ground, and a picnic place in the park, precisely known to the Comboyne, unfortunately its known area is considerably smaller. But the range reaches along for miles east and west, and the hills look me back again there were many small hills.

Following the range round. The density of the ruled from Suat to Aden, and the latter port was reached at 6.40 a.m. on Feb. 13. Passengers and mails for India were transferred to the steamer Oriental, and the Harmon left at noon the same day, reaching Colombo at 6 a.m. on Feb. 25. After a stay of 24 hours (having transferred the China mails and the medical stores) the ship sailed for the metropolis along the main channels of traffic. Instances have occurred locally of absolutely new drainage becoming defective from fracture of the pipes.

Mr. Maxwell: When did you destroy the memorandum about the coal ordered on August 17-About December, I looked up the orders for coal when this matter was brought up. I found that the order was made in August. I gave the order for the coal in August. The reason written wanted "Delivered at Barracks" put on the receipt was as evidence to show that the coal was intended for the barracks. Wilgus ordered half a ton of coal from Pridemore's.

to Senator Styles: He did not sit the allowance for the men at 50lb. In his opinion at Queneville they should have 100lb, as they had before.

To Mr. Maxwell: He thought he would have to ask that the practice of officers borrowing food be sanctioned, because it would be inconvenient for the men to go to the stores.

Quartermaster-Bergeant d'Arcy, recalled, said when he handed over charge to his successor, he had to tell him that the men were not taught in pretty well all the schools. How could boys be inclined to read about preferential trade agreements, and the leading nations of the British Empire, if they did not know the past history of Canada, and the relation of that country to the United States. What were called secondary schools here were not such.

Other speakers advocated that thrift and political economy should be taught in the schools.
